THE 1959 WHIRLIGIG

PUBLISHED BY THE STUDENTS OF
GREENSBORO SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL
GREENSBORO, NORTH CAROLINA

DEDICATED TO THE STUDENTS

... the heart of Greensboro Senior High!
To the ones who, from their timid entrance
As sophomores, to their jaunty departure
Three years later, put forth
A special effort to become
An important part of our school;
To all who give friendly smiles and Helping hands to fellow students and teachers;
To every student who plays a part,
however small
Or great, in molding the GHS character,
We dedicate this 1959 Whirligig.

A FOREWORD

“Do American educators know what they’re up to?”
“Do our schools teach too many soft courses?”
“American youth is drifting through high school!”
“Have we neglected the more important subjects?”

Such questions and criticism of American education in general force us to take a direct look at our own school. We need to determine several things:

Does Greensboro Senior High deserve a full share of the criticism? Is our school fitting us to meet the crucial problems of the space age? Are GHS students learning to think for themselves? How great is the importance of a well-balanced education?

We have tried to appraise our school with open minds and take these questions into grave consideration.

We believe that Senior High is doing its share to meet the challenge of tomorrow.

We endeavor to prove this belief throughout the 1959 Whirligig.

SCHOOL CRISIS, U.S.A. by ARTHUR BENTLEY JR. DIPLOMAS THE EASY WAY

Serialized in a series of articles by an outstanding critic of American education

Arthur Bentley Jr. is a well-known critic of American education. In this series of articles, he examines the current state of our schools and offers his views on how to improve them. He argues that the current system is producing graduates who are ill-equipped for the challenges of the future.

ARE THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS DOING THEIR JOB?

NO

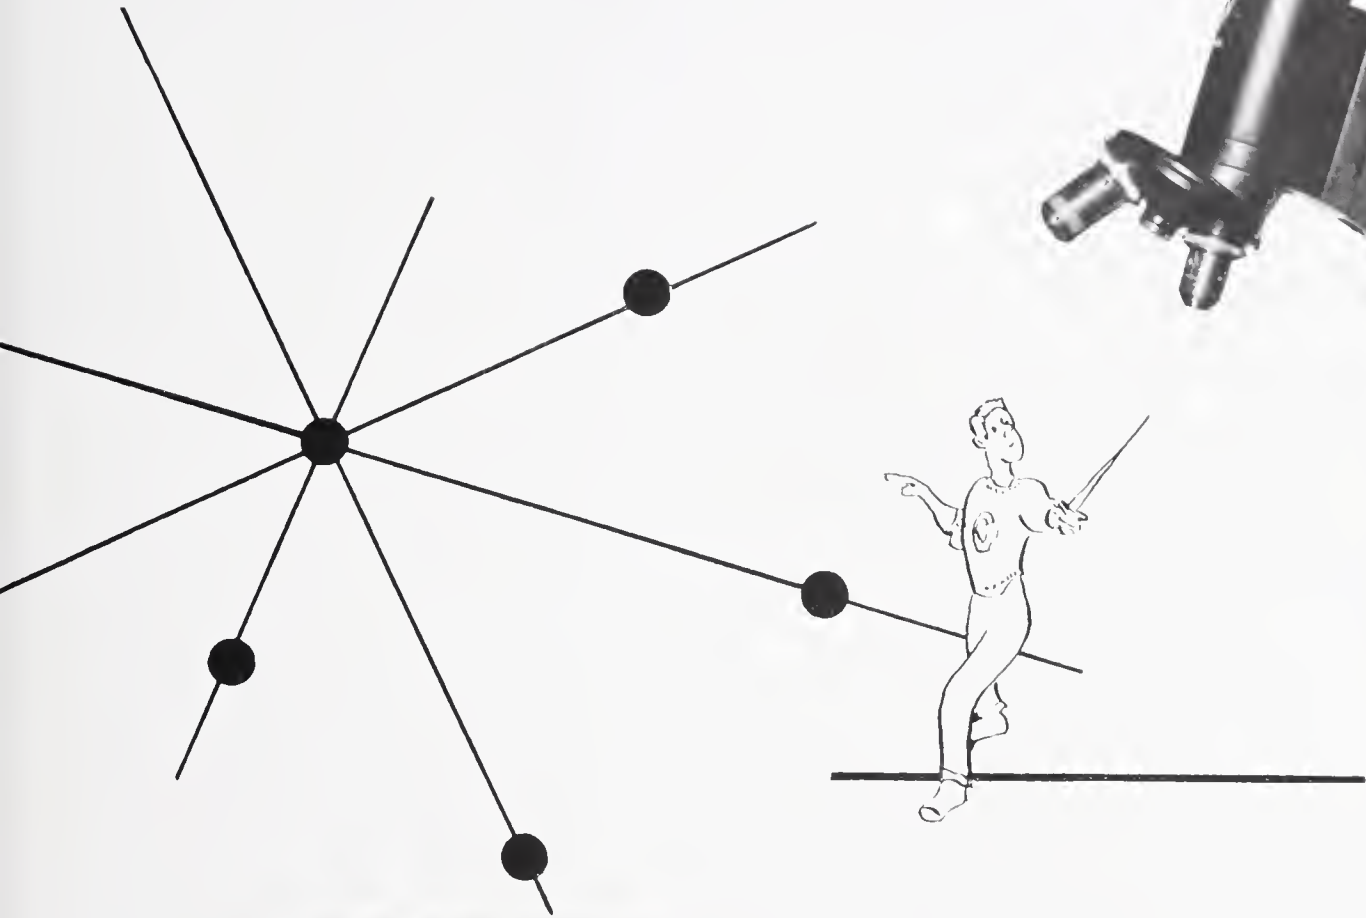

The author asserts that public schools stunt young minds by feeding them in-put lessons in social conformity and "living skill" — instead of furnishing intellectual challenges — to develop mature citizens.

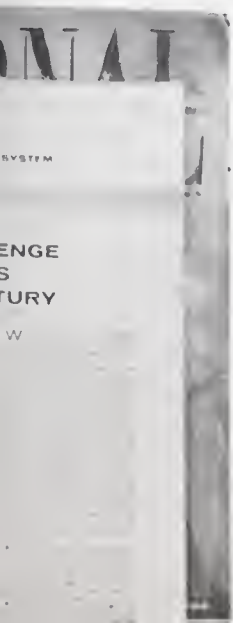

YES

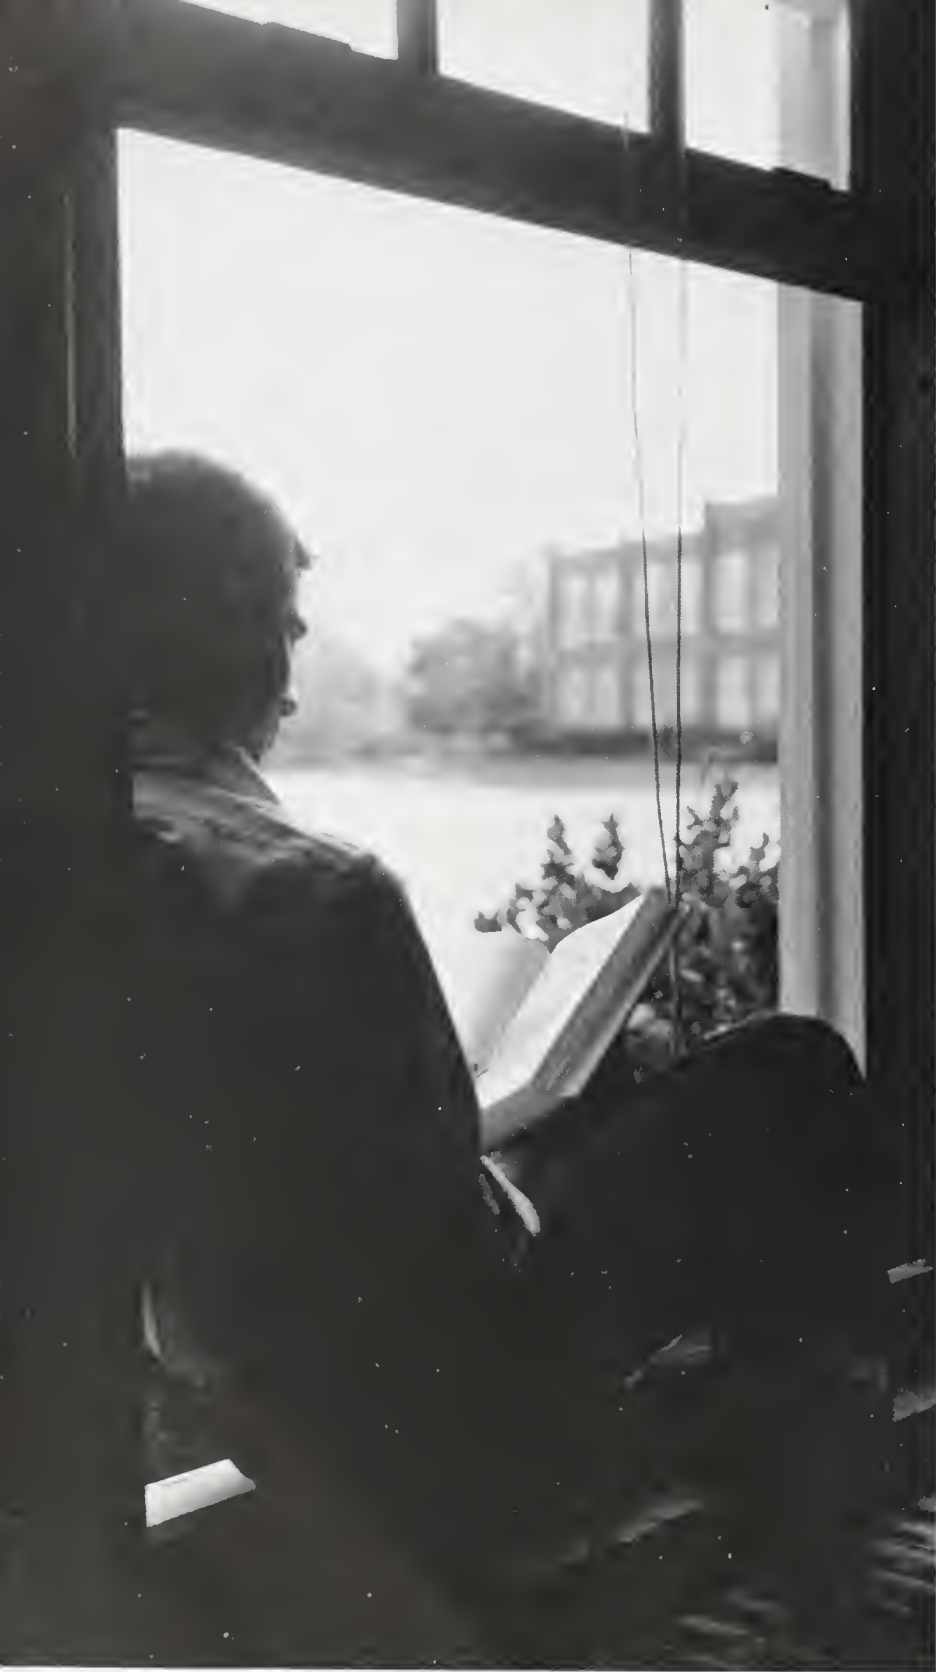

This parent declares that the American public-school system is demonstrating a notable superiority over private schools in equipping youngsters to meet the demands of the complex age in which we live.

Good reading gives pleasure, provokes thought, enriches understanding.

Clear and forceful writing demands superior effort.

At GHS students prefer a well-rounded program

In these days of spectacular achievements public opinion places great emphasis upon need for training in science and mathematics. Realizing their great importance, GHS offers extensive courses in both vital fields. But we value well-roundedness in addition to intellectual activity. Our courses in Shakespeare, creative writing, and languages, in art, music, and dramatics, broaden our understanding of other people and deepen our appreciation of many excellent things. And these, plus courses in physical education and human relations — all so essential in preserving the “whole personality” — further round out the opportunities GHS students have to help them grow to their full stature.

Enjoyment of art appears in many forms.

Even in a practice room the world of music is limitless.

Responsibility and experience in living impel

A sense of responsibility is taught, but not in a fifty-minute period each day. In many ways, we gain valuable lessons and experiences by accepting responsibilities. For instance, students under the cooperative program, with the part-time jobs, learn the value of a dollar as well as the worth of an education which has made possible the job. But the fast-approaching adult responsibility that we anticipate involves cooperating with our fellow-man in the community and in the home. Here at Senior High we get a realistic preview of how important it is that we grow in many directions and that we develop a character that will enable us to live in harmony with others.

Earning money gives purpose and stability to many GHS students.

Helpful guidance comes as well through a line of research as through candid advice.

Campaigns and conventions at GHS give a valid preview of the adult system.

them toward maturity

At GHS most lessons in living together are pleasant ones.

A good attitude toward one's school includes a sense of pride.

WE LEARN TO THINK

The size and scope of Senior High demand that students who would succeed here or later must think for themselves. Creative writing and journalism demand active minds, critical opinions, forceful expression. Local and national contests encourage students to express their own ideas. History, economics, and geography broaden understanding and provoke thoughtful evaluation. Our stimulating courses in math and science have inspired many "thinkers" to try their own skills with new experiments. In these and other ways, Senior High is a school where disciplined study, critical thinking, and growing awareness and curiosity turn boys and girls into real students.

Students grow in mastery of the English language

CREATIVE WRITING demands clear-ness of thought, a persistent search for the right word.

EXAMINATIONS climax many weeks of intensive drill in rules of grammar and thorough practice in applying them.

IMAGINATION and know-how are equally important at every stage in producing an accurate and entertaining issue of a student publication.

Nothing contributes more to a student's success than an alert and lucid approach to any subject and an ability to be articulate. And in no class is there greater effort made to train students in the mastery of these abilities than in English and journalism classes.

First comes a basic mastery of the rules of grammar and composition. Then follows their constant use in both oral and written expression, no matter what class the student is in. At GHS a variety of opportunities each day help a student become adept in more logical expression and clearer thinking.

To grow even more accomplished, he may enroll in a creative writing class and strive constantly to enlarge his vocabulary, sharpen his word sense, polish his style. Or if he chooses to help plan each issue of the school through thought, study, and creative expression newspaper or yearbook, and then write clear, interesting copy for either, he gains still further in skilled self-expression. A further dividend he earns is the joy of being creative.

Still another chance to learn to think clearly and to speak forcefully is waiting for students who go into the speech class. Nothing sharpens wits and dusts off one's "gift of gab" faster than a debate with other alert students. And no activity gives more useful training in expression than public speaking. The frequent speech contests and chances to speak in classes and in assembly programs are priceless opportunities for growing more articulate and mentally acute.

FORCEFUL public speaking is a product of much thought, repeated effort.

EFFECTIVE debating involves thorough research, careful organizing, quick thinking.

of ads. Meanwhile associate editors Jane and Sue pecked feverishly on the typewriters trying to create more editorials. Carolyn worked hard thinking of gossip — usually harder to stop than start. Game predictions would be underway, with the sports staff — Marie, Bill, Relle, and Jim — practically playing out each game. Copy editor Genie and the adviser, Mrs. Averett, were going through every waste can. Why? For ads, receipts, copy, and maybe even stale sandwiches. Then mass confusion once more became orderly progress. Orderly, that is, until make-up began, and all the thumbtacks were mysteriously in the glue.

There was more to High Life than the actual publication. There were the trip to Chapel Hill, the frantic visits to the printer, the news conference that Geanie, Relle, and Clyde attended at Page. Amid the hustle, bustle, fun, and fury of the staff's "inner sanctum," the paper went on.

The deadline looms . . . the 1959 Whirligig is finally complete. Mr. Fleming whisks it away to Charlotte and the cycle begins anew: another Whirligig starts even before the typewriters have a chance to get cool.

Editor Dahlfues thinks it would be impossible to find a more appropriate title than "Whirligig" for book or staff, for work on the 1959 Whirligig began and continued to the last in a buzzing "whirl" of activity and confusion. The staff began in February, 1958, photographing and recording people and events that would make the record complete. Lacy and Tootie captured those priceless moments with Mr. Miller and his trusty flash, but there were many incidents best recorded in words. That's why Beverly and Sherry coaxed so steadily for copy and captions to be turned in.

Whirligig's ninth All-American award in a row was the best of all incentives. We couldn't let this be the first Whirligig to fall below the high level to which nine other staffs have lifted and maintained it. So everybody kept up the mad pace; and as February 15 drew nearer, writers and typewriters pick-

There were still plenty of pictures to be identified, still necessary changes in the dummy, still so much copy that Miss Powell insisted needed polishing! Ellen and Anne weren't satisfied until they had made at least four dummies of the ad section.

It was a frantic time, interrupted only briefly by examinations and some new staff members hovering curiously around. But somehow — unbelievably — it was finally finished and sent on its way, via typesetters, presses, and binder, to this ultimate completion.

History and math courses help today's teenagers

KEEPING UP with current news is easy with weekly periodical used in history classes.

In this atomic era even teenagers recognize the basic need for a deeper and clearer understanding of man's past and his progress. Consequently, the numerous and varied history classes at GHS were filled with enthusiastic students. They pored over maps; they read their weekly American Observer, then rushed avidly to the library for more news and analytical articles. Their wide interest furnished them plenty of material for animated, sometimes heated, discussions. Whether it was in the required American history, or the elective world history, geography, economics, or international affairs, students were gaining knowledge vital to their role as voters and leaders of tomorrow.

EVERY STUDENT takes an animated part in the daily discussions of international affairs.

become tomorrow's informed, resourceful citizens

The alert GHS student knows that he will need a knowledge of more math than he gains in the basic courses required of him for graduation. So he elected advanced courses in algebra, in geometry, and in trigonometry. He chose to agonize over theorems and propositions, arcs and angles, sines and cosines, spheres and pyramids. He was not really dismayed by those taxing Thursday tests, or the brand new problems, or his turn to demonstrate and explain at the blackboard. What he learned he tried out in practical ways, with measured distances and known formulas. He was deliberately preparing himself to take a useful place in today's highly complicated world.

PRACTICAL USE is made of methods and formulas learned in trigonometry class.

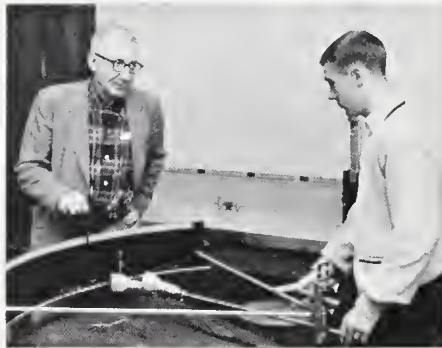

SOLID GEOMETRY is clarified by the study of visible forms — plus a master teacher's explanations.

CHEMISTRY students find experiments fascinating.

Avid young scientists enjoy prying into mysteries

Sophomores complained about having to catch hatefully elusive insects, find and identify "millions" of leaves, dissect an obnoxious frog, learn absolutely unspellable names of bones and muscles. But no matter how loud and heated their complaints were, next year will find many of them enrolling in advanced biology, physics or chemistry.

No other thrill is quite like those that come from seeing microscopic animals for the first time. Or from actually identifying some mystifying "unknown" in chemistry class. Or from solving at last a baffling problem in physics about light and energy. Or from seeing spectators crowd around the exhibit one has worried and slaved over for the Science Fair.

BIOLOGY students stretch to complete leaf collections. Above: Spectrometer invented by Mr. Johnson interests physics student.

For the students more interested in science, the Junior Engineers Club was formed. At each bi-weekly meeting a different topic of scientific interest was presented by the members; then a question period followed.

International Geophysical Year was the theme of the December assembly program by the club. Frank Harmon, narrator, created the world on stage to the tune of "The Sorcerer's Apprentice" and then went on to trace the growth of science in history. Later in the showing some of the achievements of IGY were discussed.

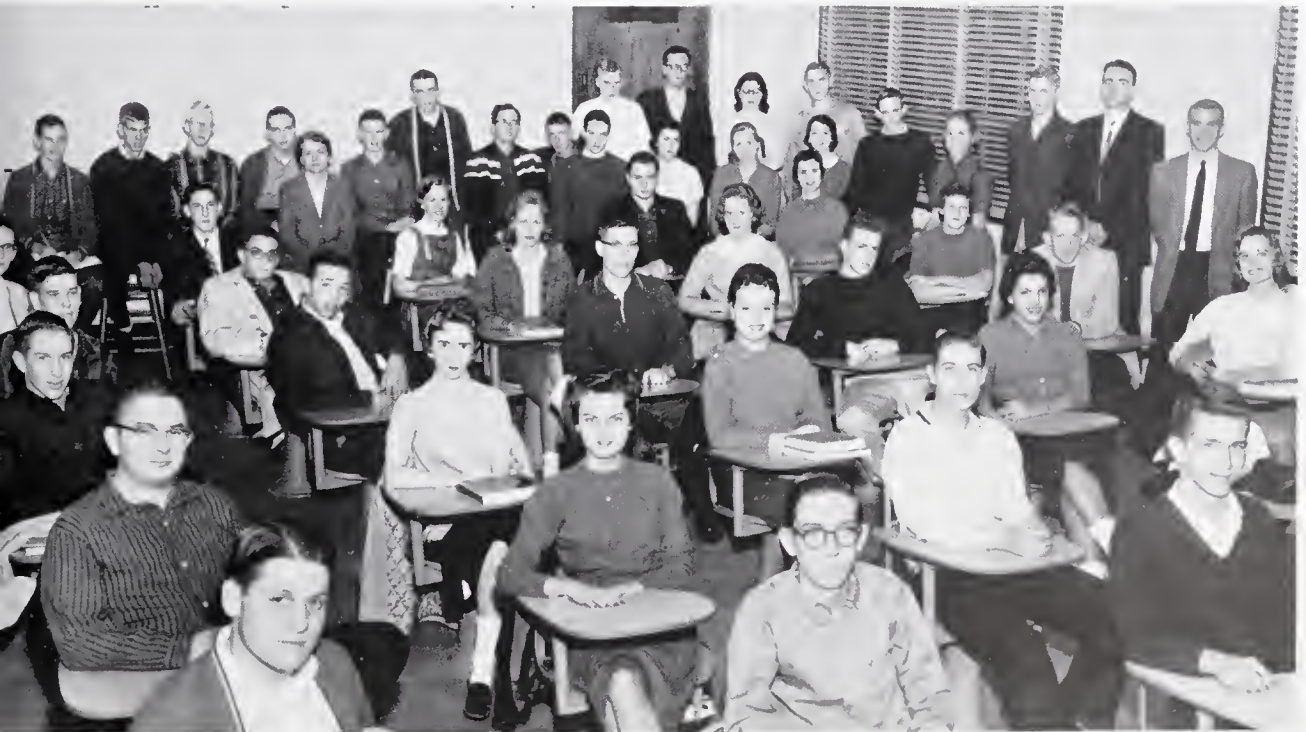

Along with their planned meetings, the Junior Engineers sponsored the Science Fair. They were in charge of organization, theme, and presentation of this project.

Silence and suspense prevailed as the robed figures moved slowly down the aisles to the stage. Candles provided the only light as the Torchlight induction in November began. The audience was still and attentive while the officers spoke briefly on the qualities necessary for membership. Then came the climax — seniors who had proved themselves worthy were rewarded with a gentle tap and a soft "Follow me." These seniors, chosen on four basic qualities — scholarship, leadership, character, and service — were quietly led to the stage.

Many juniors, as well as more seniors, were tapped at the second induction service held in February.

At the State Convention in 1958 Greensboro's chapter was asked to take charge of the State Honor Society publication for the year, and Pat Hutchins was chosen as editor.

Along with school service projects such as furnishing hosts and hostesses for College Day and offering a $200 scholarship to a deserving senior, Torchlight sponsored its annual talent show, which was varied and entertaining. Mrs. Mary Madlin and Miss Sara Mims, advisers, helped turn Torchlight's projects into successful accomplishments.

HIGH STANDARDS are rewarded as new members are led to the stage: above, Angie Davis; below, David Patrick.

As Quill and Scroll's thirty members arrived at the home of President Angie Davis for their first meeting, they realized they couldn't tarry long over their appetizing buffet supper. There were literary pieces from many students to be read, discussed and criticized before they could decide upon the selections that would go into the first of the two editions of the 1959 Homespun. In their twice-monthly meetings the members really came to appreciate the efforts that had gone into the writing of those pieces; it was often very difficult to decide which ones weren't quite good enough to appear in Homespun.

The adviser, Mrs. Newman, and the old members decided that this year membership in Quill and Scroll would not be limited to High Life and Whirligig staff members, but that all qualified students interested in increasing their appreciation of good writing were eligible.

On College Day students ply visitors with questions

COLLEGE DAY representatives are easy to locate on gym's long balcony.

YOUNG ADULTS take a look toward the future.

College Day last fall expanded into two days — October 21 and 22 — the first for GHS students, the second for Curry and county schools. Around 30 colleges sent representatives to answer questions about their institutions. The visitors were bombarded with questions about every phase of college life, from costs to social opportunities. Many parents also came with questions. Queries of both students and their parents revealed considerable previous thought and discussion. More colleges sent representatives than in previous years; more GHS students than ever before showed serious concern about making the wisest possible decisions before choosing a college to enter.

ONE HOUR is all too short for learning answers to so many vital questions.

WE GROW IN APPRECIATION

The world is as full of beauty and song as we make it. The time we devote now to music, art, drama, and literature broadens our understanding of human nature and deepens our appreciation of the world around us. Along with the languages of France, Spain and the ancient Romans, we learn new ways of life. Literature given to us by Poe, O. Henry, O'Neill, Milton, and Shakespeare reveals newly lighted worlds of pleasure and awareness. Through music and drama we learn to interpret our feelings and express ourselves more fully. All these help us grow in appreciation of life at its best.

The Contemporary Challenge to American Education

The central challenge to American education is the challenge of the contemporary world. It is a challenge that is as old as the hills, but it is a challenge that is becoming more and more acute. It is a challenge that is being met by the American people, and it is a challenge that is being met by the American people. Delight and enlightenment, through books and SHAKESPEARE furnishes endless topics for discussion and enjoyment.

From his first meeting with poor, betrayed Silas Marner and the noble Arthur with his knights, through a flight backward to the Rome of Caesar's and Brutus's day, the sophomore made friends with a multitude of interesting characters and found his view of great literature vastly broadened.

Meanwhile juniors were discovering the giants in American literature, from Poe and Hawthorne to Hemingway and Frost. And they became authors themselves, agonizing over their first original short story and thereby learning to enjoy more fully those of other writers.

Seniors jaunted to Canterbury with Chaucer's rollicking pilgrims, and took unforgettable excursions back to Macbeth's and Hamlet's domains. They were lifted to heights by Milton, wafted into a world of romance by Shelley and Keats.

And in the library — to sophomore, junior and senior alike — books, magazines, recordings and films meant many hours of enjoyment and enlightenment.

DISCOVERING a new book by a favorite author is a joy worth sharing.

BIBLE STUDY reveals fascinating history, poetry, love stories.

In Bible classes, in a study of French, or Spanish or Latin, and in art classes fascinating new worlds have been revealed. Learning in detail of the customs, the ideas — and ideals — and the languages of strange peoples meant making friends with them. This is true too about works of art and the media artists used to create them. In no area could fuller awareness bring more real satisfaction and enjoyment.

FRENCH lessons include much more than learning grammar rules.

PLAYMASTERS' OFFICERS don't get to spend much time hiding in a costume closet. They are President Golden, Sharpe, Demetriou, and Kasey.

During the first 22 years of its existence, Playmasters limited its membership to those enrolled in dramatics class. Since 1954, however, this class, plus any other student who earns a prescribed 100 points, can become Playmasters. Members become adept at make-up, costuming, and scenery designing as well as in portraying character before an audience. They read widely, observe professionals at every opportunity, practice and experiment.

This year new members were admitted at one of their monthly meetings, and the entertainment required of the initiates would have been a success before any audience. New members presented original skits, strung together by hilarious "commercials" by Al Bennett. All next day they were conspicuous in top hats they had to wear to school.

bewildered at times, for Playmasters kept many projects going. Typical of these were programs at their regular meetings, speech contests, the story-telling contest at Christmas, and three one-act plays they gave in March. Most demanding event of the year was their participation in the District Drama Festival at Woman's College in April. There Playmasters entered two one-act plays in stiff competition with many other drama groups from this area of North Carolina.

As a final activity, the Playmasters studied North Carolina drama, and then wrote original one-act plays, which they produced. This strenuous activity gave each member extensive experience in several phases of play production.

One of the most impressive programs was the induction of sixteen members in a candle-light ceremony. Another interesting meeting was a dinner where four Spanish-speaking exchange students were invited to speak.

At one meeting former member John Lund delighted the group by showing slides he took in Peru. He told of visiting a friend in Lima and of touring and photographing the interior of Peru. At another program Dr. Parker from Woman's College took them on a musical trip via recordings through Spanish-speaking countries. Three-year-old Mad Lads had certainly made a large number of friends by this year, for they were in constant demand for dances and other social gatherings. They appeared in an assembly program early in the year increasing the number of their fans.

Almost every week they played for a dance. They enlivened several open houses after ball games; they played for social club dances all year. They went as far as Winston-Salem to play for a school dance there.

They were versatile and expert, delivering almost any tune, in any style. They sometimes even worked out their own arrangements.

The whistle shrilled. "Attention!" was barked. They straightened their tanned shoulders, planted their feet at the standard 45-degree angle, and unwillingly accepted the fact that another school year had begun. The dusty field behind the Music Building was their hideout after 3:30. They were to be known as the "Twin Sixties," led by that individual, Herbert Hazelman, and his silver whistle. "Hey! You sophomore, get in step!"

mer's fun. Five members who had taken a jaunt with the Hazelmans to the Virgin Islands were still raving about their "fabulous" trip. Others talked about the beach where they made up lost time for that week-end in May when the band played for the Greensboro Sesquicentennial. Another told of his family's vacation trip to visit Canadian friends he had made in April, when the band performed throughout Toronto before the final concert with Don Jacoby, famed trumpeter, for the Canadian Bandmasters' Association.

The shrill whistle blew and with the drum major's inevitable call "Attention!" the "Twin Sixties" formally heralded the 1958 football season with trumpet fanfare before the first burst into "Dixie." Sue Ellen and her corps, with almost Rockette precision, performed as an integral part of all halftime shows; and Margot's fire baton brought additional glory to the majorettes.

The band passed off step after step in attempts to polish the performances, which ranged from the United Fund Kick-off to the Mid-Winter Concert when Frank played "Tubby the Tuba," to the great delight of everyone, and were climaxed by the glorious trip to New York for a concert and parade.

With the thought of that first whistle, and such memories of a wonderful three years as the Redskins Game, Miami Lion's Convention, Darlington on Labor Day, Canada in the spring, and the New York trip, senior band members took off their treasured blue and white coats for the last time on May 7. State Contest was behind them — boasting the usual Superior rating. So were three maturing years. The music has faded; but ideas gleaned from working and playing together linger on.

A hush fell over packed Aycock auditorium as lights were dimmed. The conductor, Professor Robert Sedore of Florida State University, raised his arms, and the first melodious notes of the All-State Orchestra sounded throughout that vast room. From the first clear note to the final dying harmony the audience enjoyed music played with amazing precision and beauty. The Orchestra was composed of high school students from all over the state. These 100 musicians were chosen by their directors for outstanding musicianship. Of these accomplished performers, 15 well represented Senior High.

Highlight of the winter for the entire GHS orchestra was the Choir-Orchestra concert; while spring brought busy preparations for the state music contest, for the first Piedmont Orchestra, and for combined concerts with the band.

All sixty-five members of the choir discovered that conscientious work and practice, inspiration, and enthusiasm, produced music that had even "Tuttle" bragging. many public performances

It was that seventh period "choir study" that furnished time and opportunities for all kinds of planning when a show was scheduled and for an endless variety of drill, work in small groups, fun, and getting acquainted.

When the choir joined the band and orchestra for a program, results were musical treats. Songs from "The Music Man" formed the basis for the very tuneful program given by the band, choir and glee clubs at a football game. No less enjoyable were the choir and orchestra show in December and the choir-band program in February.

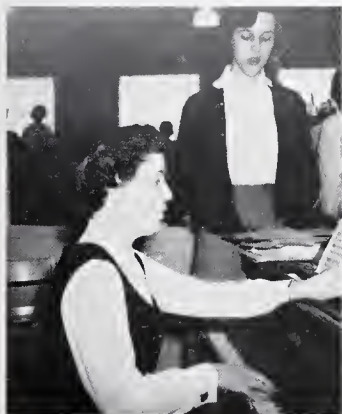

The choir was honored for its near-perfection by an invitation to sing at the Southern Music Educators' National Conference in Roanoke, Virginia, on April 3. The elation of the choir members as they whizzed off by bus for the day was justified by the fervent applause that followed their performance. They impressed the assembled music experts with their versatility and feeling, as they sang nine songs ranging from a Bach chorale to light popular songs, and ended their program with their moving version of "Battle Hymn."

"If you billy goats on the back row want to get out of Siberia, you'll have to look as if you do!" As these irreverent words rang out, any hearer would know that Miss Tuttle and Miss Meredith were busy teaching basic vocal technique to the beginners' glee club. Through practice and attention to direction and detail, eager students began soon to overcome their problems and deficiencies. A few hard workers were even promoted to the advanced glee club at the second semester, bringing them one step nearer their coveted goal — a place in the choir.

All four choral groups joined the band to present a football half-time show in November. It was such a bone-chilling night that even warmly-colorful sweaters and spirited songs from "The Music Man" hardly kept teeth from chattering in rhythm to the music.

At Christmas the glee clubs and choir made the balcony ring with the moving songs for the senior class Christmas pageant. The advanced girls' glee club was highly praised for a performance at the state Music Educators conference at Woman's College.

WE ANTICIPATE RESPONSIBILITIES

Responsibilities already weigh heavily upon us — at home, at school, in the community.

New ones will be piled on those when we graduate.

Consequently we must consider gravely what the future is likely to bring us and how we shall meet its challenges.

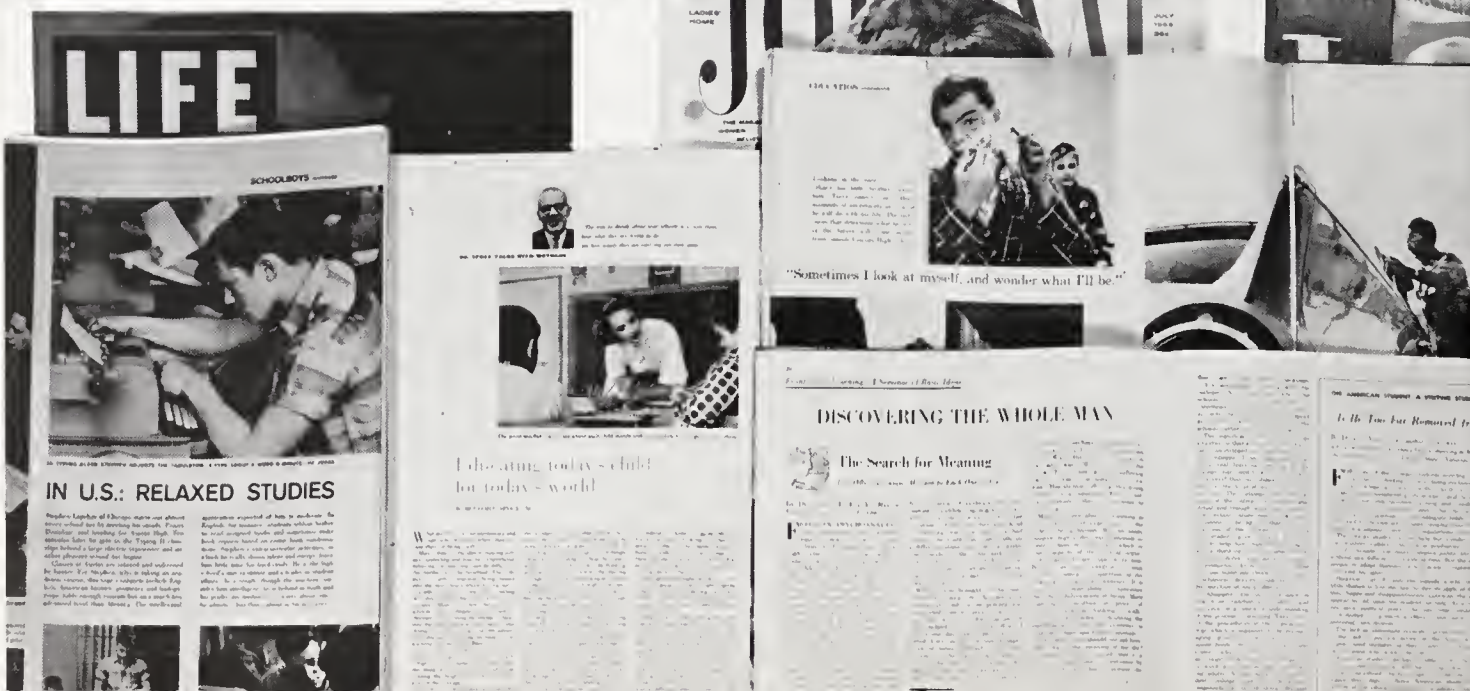

To help educate us for today's complex world, GHS offers courses through which we can lay a foundation for later success as wage-earners and money-makers. Skills we master in vocational and commercial courses will enable many to find jobs without college.

In home economics and family life classes we gain abilities and understandings that will make of us more successful family members.

With every responsibility we accept and every preparation we make now, we gain in ability to control our own futures.

At their first meeting a guest from Woman's College spoke, leaving them many enlightening facts and suggestions about teaching. Then they gave an assembly program at Thanksgiving, with the club's full membership sitting on the stage. A panel of teachers and students who had lived in foreign countries spoke of customs and conditions relating to schools there. A young Korean lady delighted the audience by unexpectedly singing some of her country's folk songs.

In home economics or in commercial courses, it

Girls who took courses in Home Economics this year were planning for the future by studying various aspects of home-making. They were endeavoring to master the skills of sewing and cooking. They also spent much of their time studying home management, which included interior decorating, budgeting money and planning nutritious, as well as tasty, meals. Results of their hard work in sewing were modeled in a fashion show presented in cooperation with music, art, and chemistry departments. This show was a colorful assembly program in January.

TYPEWRITERS are clacking many periods a day as students become efficient typists.

MACHINES and up-to-date devices become familiar through steady practice.

Typing students did endless exercises to limber clumsy stiff fingers, gradually learning to make flying motions as their speed increased to sixty words a minute. Shorthand students realized that each scribble on the blackboard actually stood for a real word and began to understand what once were obscure hieroglyphics. One dismayed student sighed, "After six weeks of endless study I still can't speak shorthand!"

In bookkeeping, complexities of finance became clearer as each young bookkeeper toiled to make debit and credit columns balance. Business English gave drill in letter writing, correct grammar and word usage. Advanced courses in typing, clerical practice, and business information were available for those preparing for a immediate job, as well as for students planning for higher education.

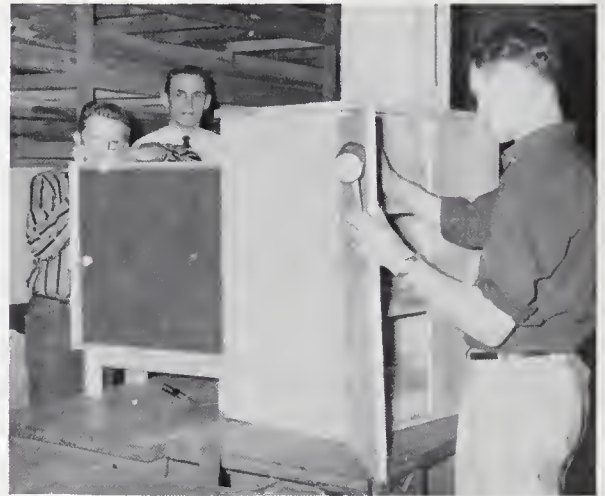

Boys learn manual skills through steady practice

Around the Vocational building at almost every period could be heard the whir of machines and the sounds of tools in use, for the first floor was occupied by all of the shops. There dozens of boys each period forgot more academic studies as they learned how to convert mere hunks of metal or wood into useful, often beautiful, products.

In wood shop boys cut and glued, sanded and polished, until they could display with deep pride a table, desk or other piece of furniture.

In machine shop other boys worked with patience and precision to turn bars of metal into a useful tool or some absolutely essential piece of equipment for the "hot rod" they were customizing.

HIGH QUALITY in furniture is created through care and patience.

In printing they were not only learning to set type, but were frequently busy printing the actual record forms and other printed materials used at Senior High.

YOUNG MACHINIST learns how to convert a piece of metal into a useful tool.

DRAWINGS required of drafting students are intricate and complex.

In drafting classes many boys were occupied each day with exercises and drawings that demanded the utmost in neatness and care. They gradually became more expert, as they tackled such projects as detail and assembly drawings and house plans.

Here at Senior High School, under the stage in the auditorium, we have a radio station with the power of ten watts. With Miss Causey as director, many educational programs for students in grades three to seven of Greensboro schools are produced. The Station WGPS-FM is number 89.9 on the dial. From 12:30 until 2:30 every day these broadcasts are technically produced by students in our own school. Numerous programs are planned and presented by pupils from local schools. The programs are then broadcast either live or on tape from the studio at GHS. The students who operate the station are employed by the city schools to present worthwhile and educational programs of especial interest to grade school students.

Highlight of the fall was a candlelight installation of new officers and the hanging of the hard-earned Sears Award, the Three-Star Plaque.

These students, though busy with school work and on-the-job training, won extensive recognition at the Central District meeting. Mary Lee Simpson won first place in public speaking. Among officers installed were District President Benjie Spears and Associate Soon after this event, Benjie went as a delegate to the national DE convention in Spokane, Washington.

One of the most informative and interesting activities of the local DE Club was the frequent field trips they took to a variety of firms and businesses in and around Greensboro. A typical example was their following a bale of cotton through every process at one of the Cone Mills and watching it come out as finished cloth.

This year Mr. Racster, D.O. Trades Coordinator, had twenty-seven juniors and seniors in his program. Their jobs ranged from that of nurse's aide to drafting and printing. All of them attended classes until 12:00 each day. One of these classes was D.O., in which they read widely about their particular field, and were given valuable experiences and advice to help them be successful in their jobs. In the afternoon they worked until 5:30, earning money and experience, and gaining credit toward graduation.

Honor Code is a real force in promoting better

PROPER CONDUCT is easy for students with the right guidance.

CLEAN thought and speech are stressed by posters

COURTESY and friendliness are basic in student-teacher relations.

COOPERATION with Council project results in neater campus.

Five years ago the GHS student body wanted an honor code. Their president Kelly Maness led them in lively and thoughtful discussions. In homerooms, groups talked about code purposes, made plans and suggestions. Then from council and committee meetings a nine-part code finally evolved. In a special vote it was approved by the student body, then printed on small cards for every student. Frequent reminders and many examples of its influence have kept the code fresh and impressed these nine purposes on successive student bodies ever since:

1. To be honorable in deed and honest in dealings.
2. To be clean in thought and speech.
3. To respect school property.
4. To be courteous and friendly to classmates and teachers.
5. To obey school regulations and cooperate with school officers.

student conduct and higher goals at Senior High

6. To foster proper conduct at school and away from school.
7. To make full use of all advantages offered by the school to improve and advance myself.
8. To create a warm, friendly, happy atmosphere to work in.
9. To reverence God at all times.

HAPPY ATMOSPHERE makes work fun, cements friendships.

REVERENCE FOR GOD is evident in homeroom devotion period each day and often apparent in other situations.

MAKING USE of advantages offered by GHS brings recognition to many students on Awards Day.

COUNCIL meeting is often serious, always animated.

When the doors of GHS opened in September, and their new adviser, Mrs. Newman, was installed, the Council "ball really got rolling." for the members helped with registration. Then sophomore elections added several new students to the Council. The football season was highlighted by Council-planned Homecoming. Many Council members served as guides on Industrialists' Day and College Day.

A project to furnish lunch-time recreation and a study hall was also carried out by the Student Council. When Christmas spirit was beginning to sparkle, the Council furnished School Spirit by having a "School Spirit Week," with a bulletin board contest.

With mid-term exams at last over, Senior High students were ready for a break; and what better way could there be for such a change than the Midwinter's Dance? Especially with the Council doing the planning and much of the decorating!

Midwinter's seemed barely over when spring elections were upon us, with all the excitement of campaigning and voting. This was organized and conducted by the Council.

Then there remained two entirely different projects for the Council to be primarily responsible for — May Day and the Senior Prom. It began, and remained so to the end, a busy, serviceable year for the Council.

DECORATING for Midwinter's was both fun and work for Taliaferro and Chairman Darden.

Elections at GHS are colorful but serious events

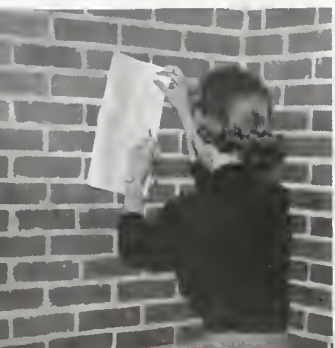

NOMINATIONS to school offices are made with a high degree of audience participation.

Elections at GHS are fun, but full of serious planning and selections. Candidates meet rigid qualifications. Campaigns begin with promises, posters everywhere, cards bearing slogans. At the convention, probably most exciting assembly of the year, homeroom banners are clever and amazing. As nominations are made, excitement mounts; demonstrations and speeches bring applause, whistles, confetti from the balcony. After a roll-call vote, candidates selected campaign with renewed vigor. Last stage is the registering and voting, then cheerful acceptance of whatever new regime has begun.

VOTING is serious business, and votes are cast and counted speedily under strict regulations.

Youth Council members initiated the newly elected sophomore members at a party in November. "Sophs" went through riotous ordeals: plunging their faces into whipped cream, popping balloons in a bag over their heads, and displaying some of their talents before they settled down to enjoy the party.

The Youth Council helped collect money for UNICEF at Halloween and for the TB fund in December. But they were especially busy planning open houses. After each home football and basketball game students poured into the gym for dancing, refreshments, and socializing. First open house of the year was jammed with 500 students. Several special open houses were held. One honored the Homecoming Queen and her attendants: others were a twirp night, a rock 'n' roll dance, and a sock hop in March to honor Page High School students.

Neat blue suits and sparkling white dresses were a sure sign that the thirty-two Junior Marshals were on the job! Mike Gurley, chief of this industrious group, and his eager assistants, Sherry Mullins and Joe Gray, pooled their ingenuity with the others to keep Senior's many school functions running in an organized manner. But they could not get by with simply ushering, for their services were needed for collecting tickets, distributing programs, and providing general information for the public. But with smiles and graciousness the marshals often performed these services for their school.

Supporting them and lending many helpful suggestions were their co-advisers, Miss Puett and Miss Montague.

The Library Council rendered invaluable service to students as well as to the librarians. This year, in addition to a regular routine of stamping and shelving books, the Council kept interesting displays in the library and maintained an attractive bulletin board in the main hall.

Once a month the group of thirty-seven, with their adviser, Miss Herring, met for dinner and fun. As the year began they welcomed a new assistant librarian, Miss Weir. At one of the most interesting meetings Mr. Fredrickson spoke about his year in Israel. Delegates went to both the district and the state conventions. There was Pride and excitement when Pat Adams was made treasurer of the Northwestern District.

WHEEL CLUB OFFICERS—Penley, Williamson, Sharpe, and President Dick — exchange ideas about their weighty problems.

"And the Wheel Club keeps rolling along" could surely be the chant of Senior High's bustling bus-driving crew. Painfully early every morning these diligent workers tumbled out of bed, ready to start the operations of the big orange fleet. Scooting around Greensboro, they patiently picked up every day over 2,000 students and carried them to and from nine different schools of all grades.

Coach Lody Glenn was the "manager" of this efficient team. The crew numbered seventeen, which included regulars and substitutes. They found their job must be carried out come rain, snow or sunshine—and in spite of the chatter, screeches, teasing, and various other distractions attached to their animated cargoes.

Once a month at the Mayfair Cafeteria, the club gathered for a supper meeting, which was an enjoyable reward for these harassed GHS bus drivers.

"Sally's mother called and said to tell her that her dentist appointment's at 3:00." Every day Senior's busy work groups rushed to meet such demands. There were countless errands for office assistants to run for Mrs. Coltrane, and just as many more errands for Miss Moore and Mrs. Blackburn. But the office wasn't the only scene of busy activity, for Mr. Glenn's bookroom boys were kept hopping with their heavy loads, especially at semester beginning and end.

There were important jobs done by volunteer workers all through the year. Boys efficiently operated the facilities, thus insuring a smooth-running assembly program each week. Cafeteria helpers were busy every day at both lunch periods preparing for the

Inter-Service Club Council coordinates projects

Members of the Inter-Service Club Council met every two weeks on Sunday afternoon at the home of one of the members. At the meetings, council members discussed work done by their own clubs and compared notes on progress and services. Their adviser, Mrs. Pfaff, helped most in the planning of their projects and in preventing the overlapping of their different plans. Primary purpose of the council was this coordination of club efforts. For all the service clubs, the council made rules, which were rigidly enforced.

Cakes and shakers finance Jr. Civinette projects

FRUITCAKE sales swell Civinette's treasury in December.

JR. CIVINETTE OFFICERS are Blackman, Stone, Thayer, President Hutchins, Farr, Eichhorn, Barker.

Thirty cheerful young ladies wandered among bustling spectators at the stadium gate. Their smiles widened as the Junior Civinettes sold the last of a thousand rustling shakers in their eager effort to boost school spirit as they enriched their own treasury. Although the Junior Civinettes are a fairly new club, they have already accomplished several service projects in proof of their interest in serving GHS and the community. For example, the City Beautiful Committee received a twenty-five dollar check signed by the Junior Civinettes' treasurer. The club contributed the very useful water fountain to the girls' gym last spring. At the state Civitan Convention this gift won for the club a trophy for the best school project. In February they gave GHS the first 49-star flag in Greensboro.

The sale of fruitcakes proved profitable for the club members, who could be seen during the Thanksgiving holidays, and again at

The Junior Civitan Club's first project of the year was a "school spirit campaign." From this appropriate beginning, they carried on many serviceable activities throughout the year, ending with the publication of a Student Handbook and a map of the campus for sophomores entering GHS next fall.

"Victory flags" furnished by Junior Civitans flaunted the news of every Whirlie triumph. The boys sold tickets for games and gave the basketball team a warm-up ball in school colors. They also furnished baskets of fruit for visiting basketball teams, sponsored a "fill-the-gym" night during the basketball season and later led a campaign for greater support of the basketball and track teams.

The club showed its pride in GHS by helping improve and beautify the campus. They furnished a sign at the entrance from Benjamin Boulevard. Stepping stones laid by a group of boys gave teachers a neat and convenient access to one of the new parking lots. Club members reseeded the lawn, painted posts in the student parking lot, and often picked up debris there.

Not to neglect scholarship, the club distributed "How to Study" information after an assembly program early in the second semester. This helped the student body off to a studious start.

The activity of the Junior Civitans which attracted perhaps the most attention throughout the year was the frequently issued "pocket bulletin boards," by which the club kept GHS students and teachers informed of important coming events in the school program.

To finance all of these projects, the club members sold hundreds of pounds of fruit-cakes. Selling, projects and services were fun for the boys, but enjoyable in a quite different way were their social gatherings, to which their dates added another dimension. Typical of their happier moments was the hayride at the Pemberton farm on a chilly autumn night.

CLUB MEMBERS prepare to distribute directories.

Senior High School's Key Club lost no time this year in plunging into different projects which would benefit both the school and the students. The new members taken in quickly realized that these projects were accomplished only through much planning and relentless effort. Beneficial work of this kind proved to be fun, however, especially when members viewed the fine results.

Key Clubbers provided copies of the school song on small cards for incoming sophomores and welcome name tags for all students to wear during the first few days of school.

They also prepared baskets of fresh fruit for each visiting football team during the season. They printed a helpful football brochure and treated a group of underprivileged children to a thrilling football game. Then during the basketball season the Key Club produced another informative little booklet about the basketball team and its schedule.

In October each teacher and student gratefully received a copy of the Key Club Directory. This indispensable booklet was probably the most deeply appreciated service of the Key Club during the year.

Weekly dinner meetings at the Mayfair Cafeteria were the scene of important business discussions and many interesting programs. Movies of Whirlie games and talks on subjects ranging from alcoholism to the world wars were included in the programs presented every two weeks.

Los Condes, the newest boys' service club formed at Senior, is not last in the line of service. With the Junior Chamber of Commerce sponsoring them and Phil Magruder as adviser, this club has gained recognition through many projects. Early this school year Los Condes members donned their painting clothes, got out their paint brushes, and set to work painting the GHS trash containers in an effort to stress "Keep GHS Clean."

The boys then saw a chance to boost Senior High's school spirit by backing a school mascot. One of the members wore the mascot outfit and took on the appearance of the famous "Whirlbird" at all GHS athletic events. Also in connection with the sports field, the club sponsored an "Athlete of the Week" bulletin board to honor the week's most outstanding athlete; at the end of the year the club presented a trophy to the "Athlete of the Year."

Throughout the year the boys sold different products to fill their treasury; and they worked at the GGO with Junior Chamber of Commerce members to earn money to finance a scholarship, which they awarded to a deserving senior at the close of a true year of service.

Les Freres keep busy with meetings and projects

Les Freres Hi-Y Club set out to outwit Greensboro's dreaded bulb-snatchers with their project of selling light bulbs. The money which they collected enabled a needy youngster to attend a camp. The boys, concerned about their community's welfare, not only solicited for the Heart Fund but also helped with the March of Dimes. A needy family was the recipient of the money they obtained by a candy sale.

They found brotherhood in social events, too. The parties they planned during the year proved very enjoyable. Living up to their French name meaning "the brothers," they were among the year's outstanding young men's Christian Hi-Y groups.

PHILOMATHIONS: Thompson, Jessup, Elliott, McNairy, Lambeth, Wachter, Gray, Black, Walke.

Philomathions prove their desire to serve others

Philomathions, newest Hi-Y club at GHS, celebrated its third anniversary this year. Members of the club had many serviceable as well as fun-packed meetings. Typical of their purely social evenings was the hayride at Walton McNairy's farm. Many times, after the meetings on Monday nights, the boys scattered through residential sections to sell candy. In December the club displayed their desire to serve by giving each home room a devotion pamphlet. The club also showed their good citizenship by contributing $50 to the fund for building a YMCA in Korea.

Thus the Hi-Y motto "... to create, maintain, and extend throughout the home, school, and community high standards of Christian character" has been upheld by the Philomathions during the year.

Fairy tale characters frolicked on 1958 May Day

Around the 1958 May Day exercises was an aura of fantasy. Subjects of the Queen became familiar fairy tale figures for the enjoyment of Her Majesty and her court, as well as for the many spectators. The queenly beauty of Marsha Bumpass added a glowing touch to the miniature kingdom. As she was crowned by the Senior Class President, Roy Michaux, the Queen's loyal subjects rose to their feet in her honor.

Hanzel and Gretel, Snow White, and Cinderella came to life for the delight of Marsha and her admirers. One of the most striking features of the program was the minuet performed by the lovely members of the court and their stately escorts. The colorful, traditional dance around the may pole was another highlight.

By the time Queen Marsha and her court made their exit, they and the spectators had been transported for a brief happy moment to "Make-Belief Land."

DREAMY MUSIC provides delightful atmosphere for dancing pleasure at the Spring prom.

Two dances are formal

"Some Enchanted Evening" was the theme song the Southerners played at the senior prom last May. Girls in colorful dresses floated around the gym with handsome escorts, wafted on clouds of dreamy music.

January 28, 1959, was the date for the Midwinter's dance. This time the theme "Love Turns Winter to Spring" seemed literally true, for roses bloomed romantically on white trellises. The girls' gym was almost invisible, behind lovely decorations and crowds of happy dancers.

Queen is crowned to climax Homecoming ceremonies

With an air of expectancy and anticipation the 1958-59 homecoming festivities began at the Greensboro-High Point football game on September 26. With a flair the Homecoming Court was presented at the half-time. Robin Farr was revealed as runner-up to the queen and given a bouquet of roses. Suspense was heightened by the fact that the queen's identity had been kept in strict secrecy since her election by the student body. As the climax of the ceremonies, Senior Class President Dave Liner crowned Sheila Sapero Homecoming Queen.

WE LEARN FAIR PLAY

What is fair play?

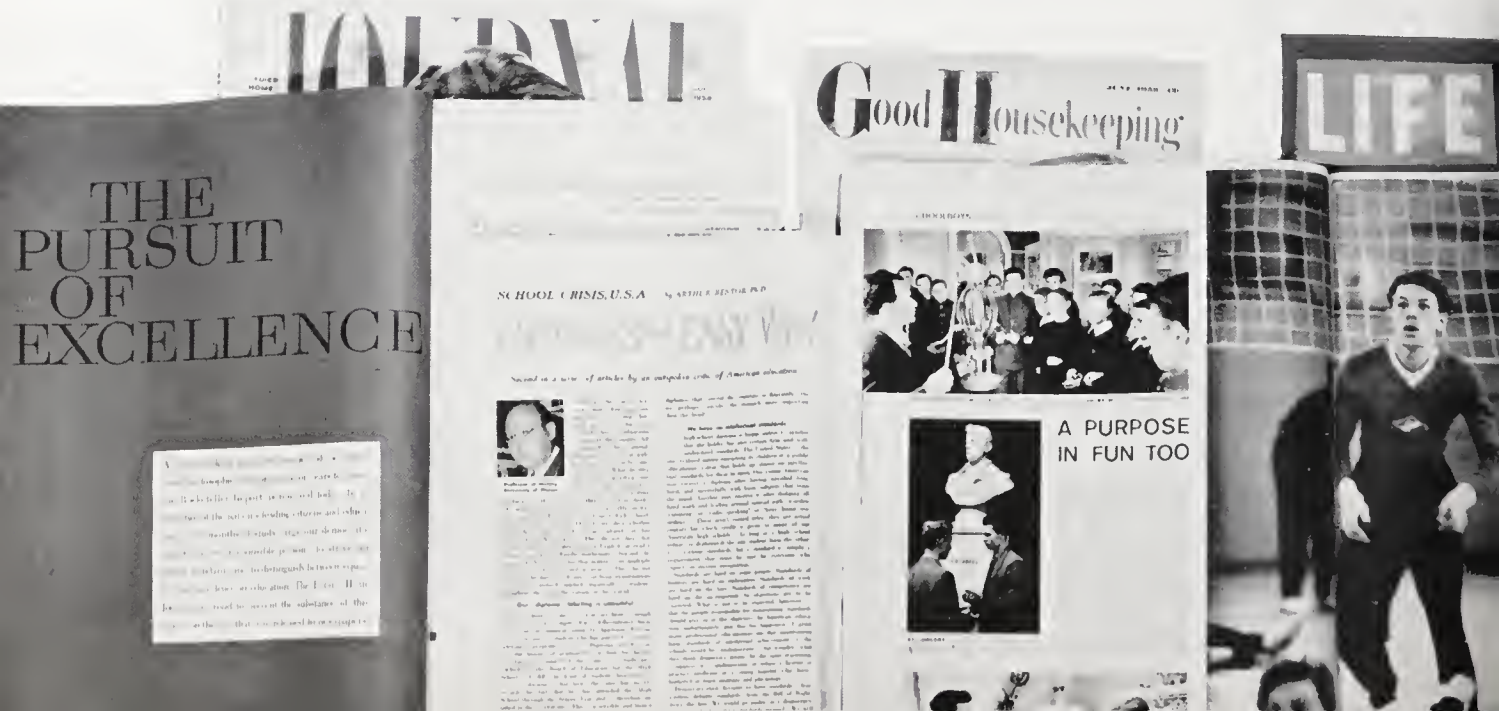

Is it following the rules in a ball game?

Is it sportsmanship, courtesy, and co-operation with others?

We at Senior think our definition should include all of these. Every student is given a chance to illustrate these principles by participating in our athletic program — if not on a varsity level, perhaps on a junior varsity team or in physical education classes. But even if we don't actually play, as spectators we can apply the same rules.

At GHS our motto is in line with this thought: "If the game is lost, make sure that's all that is lost."

IT TAKES several Reynolds men to stop quarterback Jamieson.

Football team shows fine team effort, many stars

"HUP-TWO" sounds as two big lines square off.

Raleigh was GHS's first opponent and the game was played well both offensively and defensively. The Whirlies won with two plays. On the first series of downs from scrimmage, Jamieson carried the ball 60 yards for a touchdown. Later Morgan went 80 yards for a score. Another non-conference game pitted the Whirlies against Durham. The offense never really got started, and the defense couldn't hold the visitors. The Whirlies lost 0-13.

Against Charlotte Central the Whirlies did everything but score enough points to win. They moved at will except inside the twenty-yard line, and Charlotte's passing kept the Whirlie backs on their toes. At the final gun, the score was Central 14, Whirlies 13. Homecoming saw the Whirlies get back on the winning track against High Point. Aydelette scored on a 22-yard pass, and Morgan romped 80 yards for the final 14-6 score.

Burlington offered little resistance as the Whirlies unleashed a tremendous attack to smother the Bulldogs 25-0. Swofford scored twice, and Morgan and Groome each added one in the rout. Wilmington's Wildcats brought to our stadium a vaunted passing attack which the Whirlies found hard to stop. In a thrilling offensive battle, Stout, Jamieson, Morgan, and Swofford scored touchdowns for our 28-20 victory.

OPPONENTS find it hard to run over the Whirlies. Below: Swofford can't be stopped by Wilmington backs.

Myers Park of Charlotte was next to suffer under the mighty arm of the Whirlies, as we rolled to a convincing 35-12 victory in a non-conference game. Morgan led the Whirlies with three touchdowns of 60, 22, and 5 yards. Horney and vonHerrmann each scored once. Not much offense was needed when Salisbury met the Whirlies as the defense played one of its finest games. Swofford provided two touchdowns and Morgan and Stout one each for the one-sided 27-0 score.

Fancy running by Morgan stood out on the Whirlies' Halloween night slaughter of High Point. Morgan got 3td's, one a 90-yard run, the other of 80, and the last of only 8. Swofford scored twice for a 32-0 victory.

Ending the regular 1958 football season was a battle for Central AAA title. Winston Reynolds, which brought a hard-running backfield that the GHS line couldn't control, built up a 20-7 halftime lead, and the Whirlies never caught up. Morgan and Aydelette scored for the 14-26 final score.

COACH McCALL led the JV's to a 7-1 record.

COACH JAMIESON offers praise and criticism to players during tense moments of important game.

JV stars show promise for varsity competition

Past Whirlie JV football teams have earned a reputation as the toughest in the state, and in 1958 it was no exception. This year Coach McCall's boys won 7 games and lost only one, a close affair to Burlington. They averaged 20 points a game, allowed the opposition only 8. VonCannon, Byrd, and David Morgan led team scoring, while Saunders and McKee were standout backs. Since all are sophomores, they should be valuable on the varsity next year. Watson, McNairy, Giles, Lester, and Brian Morgan played a lot at center and guard. McCall and Saunders were the best tackles; Parker and Cates, outstanding ends.

The 1958-59 basketball team won the North Carolina triple-A championship for the first time, defeating three-time winner Wilmington in a manner that brought honor and pride to both the team and the school. From the first, the Whirlies displayed strong offensive ability; their splendid defensive power continued to develop all through the season. The GHS team was blessed with height, the starting players averaging six feet two inches.

The season opened with a game against Lynchburg, Virginia. The Whirlies showed their true potential in this game, winning by far more than the 46-41 score indicates. They were the only team to defeat the Lynchburg team, which subsequently won the Virginia state championship.

Larry Hudson was the leading scorer, with 248 points in 23 games. Bob Jamieson, Jr. was second highest, with 239 points. Tommy Edwards scored 202, Randy Blackwell 183, and Stick Wilson 165 points, to round out the top five. Jamieson led in free throws, making 69 out of 90 tries; Blackwell and Wilson also connected with over 70 per cent of their attempts. Also, Jamieson was by far the top rebounder.

Bob Jamieson is chosen Most Valuable Player

By winning the North Carolina AAA championship this year, the Whirlies not only snapped Wilmington's string of three straight tournament titles, but also gave GHS its first state title since the tournament system began in 1948. It was Greensboro's first championship since 1945.

The tournament was a fitting climax for a very fine season. After beating Raleigh and Rocky Mount, the Whirlies couldn't be stopped. In the final game they ran up 14 points before Wilmington could even get started. Jamieson, who was chosen "most valuable player" of the tournament, played the finest game of his career. He scored 14 points and grabbed 7 rebounds, all crucial. It was the near-perfect teamwork of the Whirlies, however, that made this victory a sure thing. Their tough zone defense was almost impregnable. And the Whirlie overall shooting for all three games of the tournament was superior, topping 50 per cent.

WILSON swishes. Chalk up two more points for GHS.

Eight Whirlie swimmers make '59 All-State team

The 1958-59 GHS swimming team won only three meets but it had eight members chosen on the All-State team. This year four new state records were set, one of these by the Whirlie medley relay team of Paul Sikes, Dan Derby, Harry Schiffman, and Butch Edwards. Whirlie swimmers named on the All-State team were led by Schiffman, who had the top time in 100-yard butterfly and second best time in 150 individual medley. Others were Tommy Steed, diving; Derby, 100-yard breaststroke; Lem Walters, 150-yard individual medley; and Edwards, Fred Wedler, and Mackie Stout. members of the 200-yard free-style relay team.

PATTERSON pins a Page wrestler with little trouble.

Under the leadership of Coach Claude Manzi, the 1958-59 wrestling team had another successful year. The boys won eight and lost four meets; they placed fifth in the state meet. Tommy Fidler, who won 10 of 11 matches during the regular season, was the only Whirlie to reach the state finals, where he placed second. Patterson and Hileman got as far as the semi-finals and placed third and fourth respectively. Parsons, Bailey, Midkiff, and Dorsett also wrestled regularly, while Moser filled in in any class from 138 to 165 pounds.

This year's squad was composed of 35 boys, most of whom were underclassmen; so Coach Manzi is looking for a bright future for them.

COACH SMITH discusses the starting line-up with team Co-captains Crayton and Gaylord.

Forecasts of the chances of the team in the tough Central AAA loop were bright, as there were seven returning lettermen. The pitching was to be the strong point, with Larry Crayton, Randy Hartsell, and Jeff Newnam. The batting was also to be better than usual, with power hitters Barry Morgan, Bill Godfrey, and Spencer Gaylord returning.

March 25 was to be the first game with Salisbury, but inclement weather postponed it. On the following Saturday the team from Cranbrook, Michigan, visited the Whirlie diamond. Larry Crayton started and won the game 4-3, but Randy Hartsell relieved him in the fifth inning. Practically everyone on the team played in this game, Coach Julian Smith experimenting with the players.

Crayton, Morgan spark diamond men to victory

SLUGGERS Bill Evans and Barry Morgan plan strategy with pitcher Jeff Newnam before a crucial game.

On April 3 the Whirlies traveled to neighboring High Point to clash with the Black Bison. Crayton relieved Hartsell in the third and won his second game. Barry Morgan clouted a homer with one man aboard for a 5-0 score.

During a break in the schedule due to rain, Gaylord was elected captain of the Whirlies. The next game was with Burlington, and Greensboro captured the title with a 7-0 win, with Crayton pitching a no-hit victory over the luckless Bulldogs. Two days later in the final game of the regular season, Hartsell was defeated by Reynolds by a 3-1 score.

The Whirlies met Gastonia May 8 and 9 in a two-out-of-three-games series for the Western Conference Championship. Crayton and Hartsell did a fine job of pitching, but the hits were few and far between. The Green Wave defeated the Whirlies in two consecutive games, 2-0 and 3-0, for the championship.

Morgan led the team in batting, with a .435 average. The only other person to hit above the .300 mark was Tommy Tuttle with .375. Crayton ended the season with a 6-1 record.

MORGAN displays batting form that contributed to his .435 average during 1958 season.

The 1958 Whirlie track team was hampered by lack of facilities for practice and the worst spring weather in years, but the boys never gave up. GHS's new cinder track was not finished until after the middle of the season, so the boys had to practice on the soggy football field. After a slow start they later tied a strong Burlington team, finished second in the Western AAA Conference Meet and completed the season by winning the Carolinas AAU Junior Olympics.

At press time the 1959 team appears very strong. Perkins, Moser, Rogers, Wilson, vonHerrmann, Steed, and Waldron are back, with Rogers and Wilson expected to push state records in their events.

PRACTICE perfects 1958 Golf team: Starr, Sockwell, Inman, McNairy, Casey, Haraway, Glascock, Murphy.

Murphy, Glascock lead '58 golf team to 8-2 year

GOLFERS pause for a breather during a match.

Warm days in March, 1958, brought out the golf team for practice, and by April they were ready for their first match with Burlington. Sparked by George Murphy they won this match, but lost the next two. From this point they won all of the remaining seven games on their schedule. In the state tournament they were second after the first day's play but fell behind on the last day.

Murphy, who won the 1958 golf cup, Tommy Glascock, Tommy Haraway, Sammy McNairy, and Carroll Inman were outstanding. Winky Casey, John Starr, and Edgar Sockwell also won several matches.

As this Whirligig goes to press, the 1959 team appears just as strong. Lettermen Inman, Haraway, McNairy, and Casey are back. With luck, they may bring a state championship to GHS this year.

Tennis is one of several sports in which GHS teams excel. In the last five years, Whirlie tennis teams have won almost 60 matches and lost only 3 to other high school competition. They have repeatedly captured conference and state championships. The 1953 team was the first in several years to lose to another high school team and they finished the season with a 4-3 record.

Jim Eskridge, Jim McGregor, and Allan Andrew were the outstanding seniors. Randy Blackwell, Bennett Glass, and Ashley James were also heavily counted upon on the courts.

At press time, it appears that this season will probably be better than last year's because the team veterans are as determined as they are experienced. James, Glass, and EXUBERANT Whirlies jump the net after a match.

Blackwell are back, along with Frank Thompson and Paul Harrell. These boys provide a solid nucleus for Coach Bondanella to work with.

Varied service projects keep Monogram Club busy

MONOGRAM CLUB OFFICERS, after a regular bi-weekly meeting, are (seated) Cheek, President Waldron, Wedler; (standing) vonHerrmann, Evans Edwards.

The present Monogram Club was started in the spring of 1958 by Buddy Rives and Coach Claude Manzi, who is now the adviser. At the time the Whirligig goes to press, there are 62 members who won a "G" in 1958 spring sports and in football last fall. More will be honored with membership after the basketball, wrestling, swimming, baseball, and track seasons end.

In the fall the Monogram Club made money by selling programs at home football games. They helped collect for the March of Dimes campaign; they sold paper tissue from house to house and Christmas trees at local Bi-Rite stores. Money from their projects went into a fund for the medical expenses of Roger Hobbs, former football letterman who was injured during the 1957 season. The Monogram Club combines service with fun, making it a true privilege to belong.

GAA promotes intramurals and jr. high play day

The Girls Athletic Association's major job is the organization of intramural sports, but they also hold a play day each year for Greensboro junior high schools, at which GAA girls officiate. This year this council sold GHS sweatshirts as a project to pay for a complete first aid kit and several other needed articles for the girls' gym.

EQUIPMENT identifies wide choice of games that girls may choose from in daily classes.

Girls' gym is busy place

The bell rings; girls swarm out of the gym and head toward the other buildings. A new crowd of girls rush in to take their places, eager to play. This happens six times every day.

In the spring, tennis, golf, softball, and volleyball are on their program. Softball is the main sport, played most often. Last year for the first time, tennis and golf were included in girls' phys. ed., and the tennis courts have been kept busy every pretty day since then.

Two important events of the year were play days held at High Point and at Woman's College. The day at High Point involved 9 schools, while at Woman's College girls came from 22 schools. At High Point girls participated in tennis, volleyball, softball, basketball throws, and track. At Woman's College there was competition in ping-pong, tennis, bowling, volleyball, and stunts. Girls from GHS won second place in both events.

BASKETBALL is popular form of fun and competition for phys. ed. class.

Swimming daily from 6:00 to 7:00 p.m. at Woman's College pool contributed to the success of GHS mermaids. In February 1958 they won the Southeastern High School Meet in Atlanta, where Penny Taliaferro broke two records. They won six meets last summer, including Junior Olympic meets in Asheville and Charlotte. At Spartanburg Karen and Carolyn Brown each smashed national records. In February 1959 the team took the Southeastern title for the fourth time, with seven first places. Taliaferro and Gill again starred with two events each. Judy Weaver and the 200-yard relay team also set new records.

Cheerleaders mold fans' support of the Whirlies

Few fans will ever forget the response from the stands as Ellen yelled "Gimme a G!" When our new maseot, the "Whirlbird," appeared, school spirit soared.

With a chance to escape for fifteen minutes from seventh period, hundreds of students poured into the gym to praetieipate in, and enjoy, skits put on at pep rallies to arouse school spirit. Students really howled when they saw the old school spirit buried and Coach Glenn, the new school spirit, wearing diapers and pulled in a little eart. Coming Home at the second rally was a moek home-coming of boys and girls dressed in outland-ish garb. The coaches, aecompanied by Miss Tuttle, banded together and sang lustily for the finale of the season.

HEAD CHEERLEADER Fields lifts level of fans' spirit by her own enthusiasm.

WITH THESE WE LEARN

As we learn with our fellow students we also learn from them. We meet the same problems, go to the same parties, learn basically the same facts. Together we share desires and ambitions in a world which is demanding that we grow up all too fast. By helping our schoolmates overcome difficulties, and by sharing their happiness when they excel, we develop more mature minds. Urging us toward maturity are our teachers, who patiently endure but willingly help us through this unpredictable phase of life. Our growth and maturity are truly enriched by friends, classmates, and teachers—the people with whom we learn.

New administrator takes

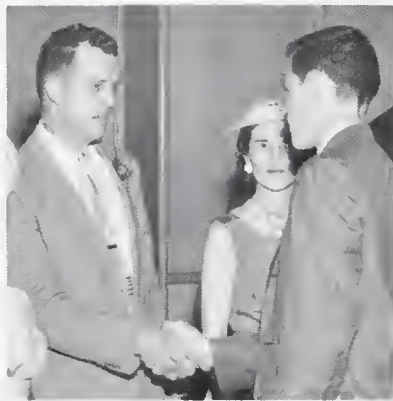

Mr. Philip J. Weaver became Superintendent of Greensboro Public Schools last summer, succeeding Mr. B. L. Smith, who retired in 1958. Mr. Weaver's post as Director of Instruction was inherited by Dr. W. J. House.

Mr. Weaver and the school board are continuing the very extensive building program begun several years ago by the board and Mr. Smith. They are trying to keep up with the constantly expanding school needs of growing Greensboro. Since last year Page Senior High School has been opened, to relieve somewhat the crowded conditions at Greensboro Senior High. Southwest Junior High is rapidly nearing completion, as are several additions and improvements at schools all over Greensboro.

office—another celebrates his 25th anniversary

In February 1959 Mr. A. P. Routh celebrated his twenty-fifth year as Principal of Greensboro Senior High School. Since 1934 the size and scope of Senior High have expanded enormously. In Mr. Routh's history as principal can be traced the life story of many innovations that were initiated by him or grew up under his administration. Much of the credit for the prominence of GHS belongs to Mr. Routh, who has managed over the years to attract and keep many excellent teachers and to maintain a constantly improving program. As a member of local, state, and national organizations and commissions, Mr. Routh is in constant motion, busy as consultant, executive, or just plain member. His efficient organization enables him to be away frequently, yet feel confident that GHS moves along smoothly.

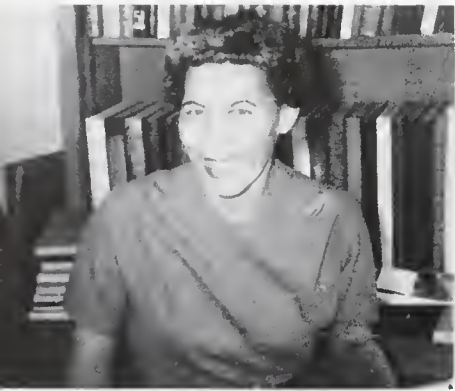

MR. ROUTH and his secretary, Mrs. Coltrane, hold frequent conferences over school correspondence and reports.

keep busy as instructors, guides, and participants

Though faculty members at GHS numbered eighty this year, the over 1,700 students easily kept that number of teachers, librarians, coaches, and guidance directors busy. If they weren't teaching a class or keeping a study hall, they were somewhere around, supervising a student activity. Or perhaps they were keeping financial records for those activities, or counselling students, with the more mature advice of a guidance expert.

As individual guides or sponsors they were constantly or frequently occupied, but as a group they sometimes functioned too. In October the faculty club had an informal hamburger fry at the Guilford Dairy club house for new teachers to get better acquainted with the veterans. Mr. Routh and Mr. Glenn made the mistake of cooking too well, and of getting to do almost nothing else.

As a group the faculty entertained at a luncheon, men from various industries on a Friday in November, then went for the afternoon to visit the firms represented. The same week they had dined at the Plantation as guests of Piedmont Industries. Final faculty club activity of the year was the tea they gave honoring the Seniors in May.

At monthly luncheon meetings the executive board of the PTSA, which includes school officers and class presidents as well as parents and teachers, planned programs for the year and sought ways of serving the school. This year's program began with an open house, when parents met their children's teachers.

A panel discussion, talks by Mr. Phillip Weaver and Dr. Gordon Blackwell, and the annual picnic for the teachers were other programs. PTSA funds helped with open houses after football and basketball games, dances, lunch-time recreation, the Science Fair, College Day, Girl Scouts, and Whirligig.

PTSA OFFICERS appear pleased over secretary's report. They are Mrs. Weber, Mr. Williams, Mr. Cunningham, and President Mrs. Sockwell.

The 1959 Senior Class is versatile and capable.

ABLE LEADERS of the class of '59 are Edwards, Ferrell, President Liner, and Stout.

MRS. BLACKBURN, class adviser, discusses costumes with Christmas Pageant chairman and "angels."

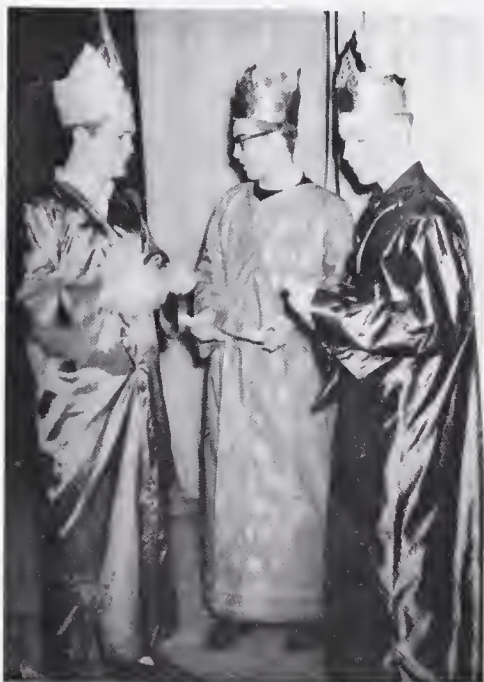

As we heard the familiar strains of "Pomp and Circumstance," we began to remember the wonderful year spent as seniors. Many exciting and memorable times kept flashing before us.

Even from the very first day, there was a feeling of anticipation for the coming year. Those first few days we tried out our superiority on the sophomores by sending them to the third floor of the science building and charging a twenty-five cents fee for the use of the stairs. We gradually began to realize the importance of the "little sophs" as we launched our sale of Whirlie ribbons. Along with this sale, the election of superlatives began our first big projects.

As the Whirlies completed their successful football season, our thoughts turned toward the production of the Christmas Pageant. We chose to put on the Nativity scene in pantomime. While each of the nine scenes, each of which represented a significant phase in the birth of the Christ Child, was portrayed, the choir sang beautiful hymns and Christmas folk songs. The effect was wonderful, and it made the beautiful story take on a new meaning.

The year flew, and before we knew it Spring had come, and with it the hustle and bustle of preparation for Class Day. The program was full of humorous incidents and many reminders of experiences Seniors had shared through three exciting years.

At last, the time for which we had been striving through twelve interesting years had arrived. As the diplomas were placed in our hands, we realized we were holding the "admit cards" to our individual futures; and although our paths would lead in different directions toward different goals, we knew we would always remember the good times even more than the hard work which we had experienced as the Class of 1959.

REHEARSALS for Christmas Pageant are hectic but thorough. Top: Shepherds add appealing touch with dog and child by their fire. Center: Role of Mary is portrayed with dignity and warmth by Jane Thompson. Bottom: Even in school clothes band of "angels" give promise of later, more impressive portrayal.

Junior Play is smash hit: fills class treasury and

The Junior Class set a precedent this year by giving a class play. "We Shook the Family Tree" hilariously related difficulties and disadvantages of teen-agers. The large, appreciative audience will never forget the riotous scenes; while cast members and committees had just as much fun on stage and behind the scenes. Miss Causey was the director; and many Juniors and teachers helped her and the cast produce this successful comedy. The money raised — which incidentally climbed far above the expected goal — padded the STANDING IN LINE so long was really worth while when that ring finally came.

CLASS ADVISER Miss Causey discusses junior play ticket sales and publicity with committee chairmen Adams and Jones.

WINNERS in "I Speak for Democracy" contest are Tom Bobbitt, Carolyn Marks, first place; and Doreen Frost.

ends financial worries

junior class treasury, even after a large portion of it was used to pay for the Junior pages in Whirligig.

One of the biggest thrills of the Junior year is to be elected a Marshal. Two from each homeroom were chosen to usher at programs in the school auditorium. They looked forward especially to Commencement, when the senior class programs give Marshals their greatest responsibility and pride.

Many juniors were in the spotlight — some for scoring winning points on varsity teams, others for being chosen in the spring elections as school leaders for next year. Fifteen juniors were picked for Torchlight at the spring tapping ceremony.

For practically every junior there was one sure thrill — the moment when they received their class ring and could wear it proudly for the very first time.

PLAY CAST find "butterflies" prevent relaxing.

COMMITTEES are on job till play's success is sure.

Through class elections, field trips, pencil sales

NINTH GRADE PRESIDENTS at Class Day program accept class colors for the incoming sophomores.

"Well! We finally reached Senior!" To say the least, we were on "eloud nine." We drifted dreamily along until — Bang! We eollided with our hallowed upperclassmen and had our first down-to-earth taste of high school experiences. These were speedily and sometimes painfully enlightening.

"Pencil, peneil! Please buy a peneil," was our motto, bestowed by class president Tommy Whiteside as soon as we had elected him. We began selling pencils bearing the football schedule as our class project to raise money for our Whirligig pages. Later we again uttered the plea as the basketball season approached and the struggle for funds was renewed.

Unexpected accelerated classes presented a ehallenge to selected students who had displayed advaneed eapabilities and eagerness to learn. As biology students we were soon made aware of numerous eollections required of us. What an awkward pieture we made, squatting on the ground to eapture an elusive and rambunctious little field cricket for insect displays! Then as fall advanced and leaves began to turn red and gold, we roamed about the campus with eyes lifted to seek out some leaf we had not yet pressed for our leaf booklets.

In athletics some of us really shone. How proud we were of our "little" guys who had made the various teams — some even varsity teams! Girls, too, came through in high spirits as junior grade cheerleaders.

Because there were more students than seats in the auditorium, only half of us were able to attend the assemblies, at alternate times; but the substitute study halls often came in handy.

The last few days of school were filled with surprise that our sophomore year had gone by so quickly. We would honestly miss the good-natured ribbing that had come our way; but, oh! what joy came with the anticipation of dishing it out next year!

SENIOR HIGH RESTS — and makes 1,750 students happy with a holiday.

GRADUATING CLASS shares moment of triumph with proud relatives.

Graduation is rewarding climax to continued effort

With May came the excited bustle of Commencement. First, seventy-five students were honored at the Awards Day assembly. Then Dr. Claud Bowen spoke at the Baccalaureate Service in the First Baptist Church. Finally, Mr. C. W. Phillips closed the school's year with his graduating address, as B. L. Smith handed out diplomas for the last time.

SENIORS happily receive their coveted diplomas from retiring Superintendent B. L. Smith.

ADDRESS by Mr. C. W. Phillips is pertinent and inspiring message.

CLASS DAY CLOWNING is fun for everyone.

"Life at Fort Routh" was the whimsical theme of the 1958 Class Day. Three years at GHS were depicted as having been spent in an army camp dominated by "General Apey." There were plenty of comical horse play, jokes and songs. Students enjoyed poking fun at their principal and teachers, but most of all at themselves. They even enjoyed going sentimental and teary over the nostalgic backward looks.

FORT ROUTH is scene of Class Day hilarity.

QUEEN'S MEN make their final appearance in the Class Day program.

CLASS DAY provides an occasion for the formal presentation of Senior superlatives.

SENIORS converge on punch bowl at tea honoring them.

AFTER CLASS DAY program seniors welcome new freedom after strain of exams.

Associations grow dearer when about to end

FACULTY honor seniors at formal reception during commencement.

Last opportunities for easy and pleasant teacher-student socializing were at the tea in Elliott Hall, where faculty members honored the Seniors, and at the Senior prom, where the gym balcony was filled with chatting groups with too many last things to say to find time for dancing.

SENIOR PROM finds seniors and faculty equally light-hearted.

WE EARN AND SPEND WISELY

Many of us earn money, and all of us spend it—but to do so wisely requires training and serious thought. We are grateful for our advertisers, who show by their support of this book that they believe Greensboro Senior High School students capable of making wise decisions about money. Many of these firms and individuals also give GHS students an opportunity to earn by employing them on a part-time basis. We grow more careful in spending our money if we have earned it ourselves. After high school each of us will be faced with added financial responsibilities, and the experience we gain now is an invaluable preparation for our future.

America – Opportunity

“America is but another name for opportunity,” said Ralph Waldo Emerson many years ago. And today’s nuclear-electronic-space age offers opportunities that would startle even the imaginative Mr. Emerson.

Textiles, as one of America’s most essential industries, affords a wide range of promising careers. High School graduates who plan to continue their education should consider the fine textile schools operating in America.

WE EXPRESS OUR GRATITUDE

Hard work and co-operation resulted in this neatly bound volume of the 1959 Whirligig. But, as we of the staff are well aware, our efforts would have been in vain without the time, willing aid, and interest of many others, to whom we are deeply grateful. We wish to thank the following:

Mr. Fay Smith and Mr. Andy Laws of Smith Studio
Mr. Gordon Brightman and Mr. John Hancock of Jahn & Ollier Engraving Company
Mr. Frank Fleming and Mr. Earl Powell of Washburn Printing Company
Mr. Carol Martin and Mr. Malcolm Miller of Martin's Studio
Mr. Dale Kearns
Mr. Stanley Johnson
Miss Rowena Montague
Miss Ida Belle Moore
Mrs. Jessie Coltrane
High Life
Greensboro Daily News
Mrs. Margy Ledford
Miss Virginia Powell
Mr. A. P. Routh

With sincere appreciation, recognition goes to the following publications which allowed us to photograph covers and printed material:
